Wednesday, Sept. 3, 2008
7-10 PM at Sheffield's
(3258 N. Sheffield Ave., Chicago)

In partnership with Chicago's popular
Reading Under the Influence literary series

Come celebrate "SIN", a new collection of provocative short stories by Columbia College students, alums and faculty.

"Enough fire, depth, and talent for a dozen collections... SIN is a must read."

--JA Konrath, award-winning author of Fuzzy Navel

"Well written and unique."

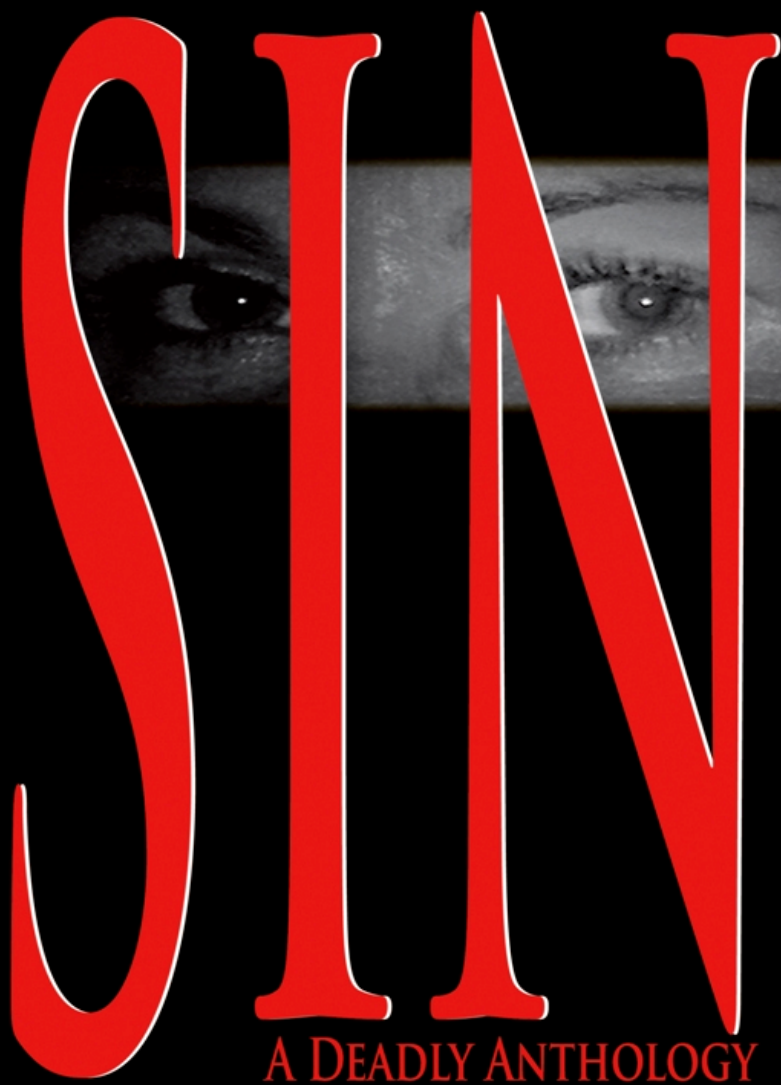

--Jon Jordan, CRIMESPREE MAGAZINE

"An intriguing read... Dare you be seen holding a book titled: SIN? It is well worth any stares you might receive."

--Heather Froeschl, BOOK REVIEW JOURNAL

SIN: A Deadly Anthology is a collection of short stories that explore how we as ordinary humans cope with circumstances that test our convictions: a husband's desperate acts during the Katrina disaster (Paoletti), a woman's struggle to accept family secrets that contradict stories she heard as a child (Campbell), a contract killer's struggle with guilt and duty as he carries out his final assignment (Frieden), a young woman's life-changing altercation with a Chicago gang in 1980s Humboldt Park (Borcherts), and so much more.

"The Chicago Contingent" is an ensemble of some of Chicago's best mystery and popular fiction authors, most of whom are faculty, alums and students of the fiction department at Columbia College Chicago. The lunch event will feature readings by Darwyn Jones, Marc Paoletti, Patricia Rosemoor (Pinianski), A.C. Frieden, Ric Hess, Julia Borcherts, and others.
