

A.C. Frieden Returns to New Orleans to Research Sequel Thriller

NEW ORLEANS, Louisiana (Mar. 19, 2010) – Lawyer-novelist A.C. Frieden arrived in New Orleans this weekend in part to research scenes for the sequel to his latest thriller, Tranquility Denied. Frieden concentrated his time on sites in the north end of the French Quarter, as well as on the city’s north side and in the central business district. The thriller series’ protagonist is a New Orleans maritime lawyer named Jonathan Brooks, who in the first novel become entangled in a deadly web of Cold War espionage. “The sequel follows the same genre, with several early chapters that take place in New Orleans,” said Frieden. “But like in the first novel in the series, Brooks then gets involved in a globetrotting adventure that takes his to Panama, Vietnam and other interesting places.

Photos above (left): Author A.C. Frieden visits the Supreme Court of Louisiana in downtown New Orleans; (right): Author A.C. Frieden hunts for interesting scenes in the French Quarter.

Frieden is no stranger to New Orleans. “I find this city fascinating, not only during my three years of laws school here, but every time I return,” Frieden said. “As I spend time here researching for my next book, I am hit by so many wonderful memories of my time in this city.”

About the author: A.C. Frieden is a Swiss-Brazilian novelist and lawyer living in Chicago. He is currently working on several political novels and thrillers, including a sequel to his latest thriller Tranquility Denied, as well as various non-fiction literary projects. For more information, visit his website at www.acfrieden.com and his literary travel blog.

All images copyrighted 2010 by A.C. Frieden and/or Avendia Publishing. All rights reserved. No photo reproductions permitted without prior written consent.

Avendia Publishing Inc.
Attn: Media Relations Dept.
444 N. Michigan Ave., Suite 1200
Chicago, IL 60611
Email: media@avendiapublishing.com